Highland Arts Council Presents a New Website

Highland, IL (June 2011) –The Highland Arts Council has added much art to the City of Highland. Now it is pleased to announce the creation of the organization’s new website found at highlandartscouncil.org.

According to Lynnette Schuepbach, Arts Council vice president and chairperson of Art in the Park, “Our new website is full of art and content, easy to navigate and the perfect online tool to bridge the gap between the Highland community, artists and the Highland Arts Council. It features information on our main event, Art in the Park, and even includes a highlight video produced by Jim Nickerson of The Tutoring and Learning Center.”

“We invite everyone in the community to visit our new website. And, if you want to know when we make updates to the site, all you have to do is ‘like’ us on the Highland Arts Council Facebook page. We will keep you updated on its progress there,” said Schuepbach. “You’ll see notifications of receptions for local artists, the artists at Art in the Park and the artwork commissioned for the City of Highland.”

HAC’s new website, highlandartscouncil.org, highlights our City filled with art. It was created by Brady Kesner, HAC president and artist, and also features The Street Art Festival. The Street Art Festival is presented the first weekend in August by the Highland Chamber of Commerce and sponsored by the HAC.
